

Paul C. DeLeo, Ph.D.

Senior Director, Environmental Safety

Dr. DeLeo's duties focus on science and policy related to the regulation of cleaning product ingredients. Prior to joining ACI in 2007, he worked at the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for eight years where he was a regulator of the safety of food additive ingredients. His professional experience includes employment with private contractors evaluating the environmental safety of industrial chemicals and pesticides for government and industry clients. Dr. DeLeo's academic background was in environmental engineering and science with a particular interest in environmental microbiology. He received a Masters degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (1992) and a doctorate from Cornell University (1996).